

Abstract

A channel access system is described in which contention window are available for assignment to streaming transmitters within a transmit protocol. The other slots are selected by the other transmitters according to a CA